Meadows

The meadow was on my left side

I passed it unintentionally as I rode

Glimpsed a daffodil flowing like a stream

Bright as the sun, clear as a gleam

Warm as the spring in the countryside

Calming as a bath that washes off your pride

Light as a breeze passing by the rain

Delicate as a petal

Soft as a feather

Like, both of us are in the same space

Only abstract, lacking physical pace

We are letting each other in on a secret

The space is like a dim light

Like a dream but real in displace

Waves of rain took my heart & left its space
